

ASSISTANT CLERK: 26 ayes, 1 nay on the Landis amendment to the amendment, Madam President.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: The Landis amendment is adopted. We return to...Senator Lindsay, are you ready with your amendment?

SENATOR LINDSAY: Yes, Madam President.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: We turn now to the Lindsay amendment to the Landis amendment. Senator Lindsay. (Lindsay amendment, FA631, appears on page 1934 of the Legislative Journal.)

SENATOR LINDSAY: Thank you, Madam President, members, AM4436 should be on your desk. And I...it's got some handwriting on it that references to the correct page numbers. First, I apologize for that. This was drafted originally to AM4332, and so we had to redraft it to AM4434, so that's why the chicken scratches on it there. But it does...just different line references. Other than that it does the same thing as it was originally drafted. What it does is it takes out language which...and adds new language. And this was not in the original bill. In the green copy of the bill it had the original...I mean this changes it from the green copy of the bill. It doesn't just say the brewpubs don't have those privileges. And that, of course, is a...simply, I guess, a deal that was cut between the wholesalers and the brewpubs in exchange for getting the bill. However, there may be those out there who are brewpubs, or may have to convert to being brewpubs who may want that to have that language left in there. And so with that, what this does is it strikes that language so that it just makes clear the actions don't apply. Furthermore, if somebody is in kind of a situation you may need somebody, you may need financing to open a brewpub. Brewpubs cost, like a manufacturer, cost big time money to get into, into the...upwards of a million dollars, and I think quite a bit upwards of a million dollars because you're also opening a restaurant. It may be necessary for some small brewpubs to need to look for financing. What this does is close out from any
